HUNG WINDOWS

Project Description

Homer Pittard Campus School is an elementary school located on the campus of Middle Tennessee State University in Murfreesboro, Tennessee. The products used were Double Hung pocket replacement windows, which means that the existing frame was still used.

Unique Solutions and Obstacles

Despite the paint and asbestos abatement, the project was completed during the school's 8-day spring break. It required tight coordination between Sun and the contractor. The contractors worked day and night to get the project completed before the break was over. The school principal told us no one believed the project would actually be finished when they came back to school. The principal, teachers, and staff of the school were all flooded with emotions of happiness at how well the project was done in such a short amount of time.
